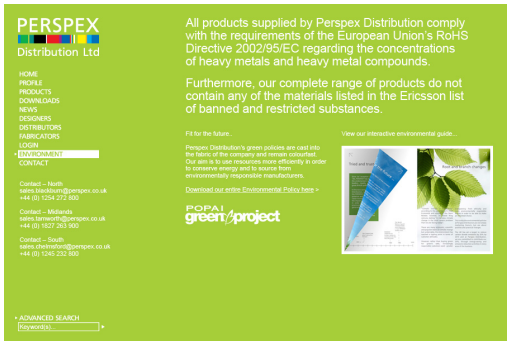
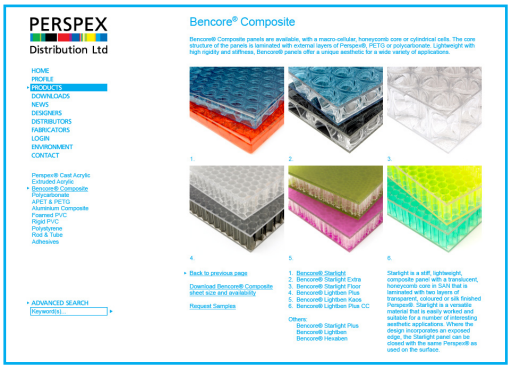
New Website Launch

01/09/2009

PERSPEX Distribution Ltd





Plastics distributor Perspex Distribution has launched a new website to provide its customers and specifiers with comprehensive information about the company and its products. Extensive use of photography displays the products in sample form and with application examples to illustrate the possibilities of each material.

Ease of navigation throughout the site enables users to view the different products and gain access to product features, availability and technical information.

Commenting on the new website, Beckie Norris, Marketing Manager at Perspex Distribution says that "following the launch of our product guide which offers a comprehensive overview of the company's products, the website was a natural progression to support our customers and further raise our profile within the markets in which we operate".
